

PIERCED HEART

"Home is where the heart is. And my heart is always where I am."
(Lily Leung)

This jewel is a reliquary piece which is hiding the most secret thing, something special and unique belonging to a saint. All the saints possess a great and courageous heart, full of love and pain at the same time. The artist crafted this one from silver and describes the experience as a wonderful creative moment during which his hands worked together with fire and the love in his heart.

DESIGN

Constant uniqueness, difference and the incredible truth that there are no two things exactly alike in this world. All these notions are pushing the artist to create raw jewelry, which has not been 3D printed or made by machines like yellow rubber ducks. The human being is unique, every person is entirely original and that is why all of his natural jewelry is made specifically for each client. All of his work is entirely handmade using artisanal goldsmithing techniques.

HUMAN SOUL

This ring, handcrafted using 14K white and yellow gold is a piece of jewelry which can be likened to a soul: it is strong and fragile at the same time, full of feelings yet sometimes so empty. It is running forward and remaining in the same place. It is something ever-changing and forever fascinating, bound to mysteriously entrance humanity for as long as there is life. Its total weight is 21.85g.
